Explanation Statement

Form/Line: Form 990, Part VILine 76Explanation of: Description of Activity Not Previously Reported to IRS

The organization operates the following programs to expand its initial purposes of providing nutritional assistance to those who are most in need of such assistance. The organization focuses on two specific groups with at risk needs in this area. One group is children and the other group is persons involved in religious outreach ministries in foreign countries, predominately in underdeveloped countries.

Children are by nature a charitable class and the organization strives to be able to provide nutritional assistance to at risk children through two different avenues. One program is available for children that are experiencing a medical condition in their life. This program allows people to sponsor these children for $125 per month and the children will receive a supply of nutritional supplements with a market value far exceeding $125 per month. These children are classified as to their conditions. The second program operated by the organization is targeted at orphanages throughout the third world. In this program, an orphanage is selected and various teams of both staff and volunteers are sent to the orphanage to take nutritional supplements to these children. At the same time while meeting the nutritional needs of these children, they are able to share the love of God with them and minister to them on a spiritual level also.

The other focus of individuals is to those persons dedicating their lives to spreading the Gospel of Jesus Christ in foreign countries. Many times missionaries live in areas of short supply. Their normal nutritional needs cannot be met by local food supplies. Therefore, Manna Relief also operates a program for missionaries who have resided in the mission field for 6 months or more to acquire nutritional supplements at a greatly reduced price than the normal fair market value of nutritional supplements. These persons also normally live on very small budgets. The reduced price enables them to maintain
